

This month, the Phenomenex España & Portugal teams have joined forces by relocating to a new office located in the shared Danaher building Alcobendas, near Madrid, Spain.

Joined by the external sales team from Barcelona, Bilbao, Valencia, and Madrid, the teams commemorated the move with a ribbon cutting ceremony.

This has been a sizable investment and the various Phenomenex teams are very grateful to all those who supported the move.

What does the new office mean for our customers? All communication channels are as easy as they were before, but now with the new, updated facility, Phenomenex associates will now be able to do seminars.

“Better facilities will allow us for better communication with customers, because with less noise, it will allow us for more professional conversations. The new office will also provide more natural light, which can contribute to happier employees” said Daniel Lopez, Sales Manager in Madrid.

The new facilities will allow for more fun and relaxation in the office too! With a foosball table, a Wii, dartboard, and sofas, associates can take an enjoyable break from a hard workday. The office spans over 3,600 square feet, with beautiful windows spanning the width of the office.

It also allows for more collaboration between teams, with the addition of an 18-person conference room, a casual meeting and relaxation room, a mini cabin for impromptu meetings, and an open concept with space for 24 employees.

All of Phenomenex is very excited for this move and the possibilities that it will bring.
